Sunday Before the Meeting. a benutiful day, not too warm for comfort, and the delegates and visitors not immediately engaged in the business of the convention have visited the attractive suburbs and swarmed at all the hill-top resorts. OHIO FOR THURMAN.

Last night a most delightful reception was class high a most cargain receptor was given the Ohio delegation by residents of Clifton. Speeches were made by Theodore-Cook, George H. Pendleton, William S. Groesbeck, John McSweeny, John W. Stevenson and Richard Smith. To-day the Ohio delegation had two meetings, at both of which great enthusiasm was manifested for Thurman, and enthusiasm was manifested for Thurman, and it was resolved to stand firm. It was stated that Jewett's candidacy was not to be considered so long as Thurman was in the field. Much hitterness was expressed toward the supportors of Payne. It was decided that W. D. Hill should make the nominating speech, and that John McSweeny should second the popularities.

THE NEW YORK DELEGATION.

To-night the New York delegation held a meeting at the Grand hotel, and organized by cheosing Daniel Manning chairman and S. B. Halliday secretary. Mr. Peckham read the following letter from Samuel J. Tilden:

MR. TILDEN'S LETTER. NEW YORK, June 18, 1880. To the Delegates from the State of New York to the Democratic National Convention:

Your first assembling is an occasion on

of opinion

The dignity of the presidential office is above a merely personal ambition, but it creates in me no illusion. Its value is as a great power for good to the country. I said four years ago in accepting the nomination:

Knowing as I do, therefore, from fresh experience how great the difference is between gliding through an official routine and working out a reform of systems and policies, it is impossible for me to contemplate what needs to be done in the federal administration without an anxious sense of the difficulties of the undertaking. If summoned by the suffrages of my countrymen to attempt this work I shall endeavor, with God's help, to be the efficient instrument of thoir will.

Such a work of renovation after many years which it is proper for me to state to you my relation to the nomination for the presidency which you and your associates are commis-sioned to make in behalf of the democratic which you ame to behalf of the democratic party of the United States. Having passed my early years in an atmosphere filled with traditions of the war which secured our national independence, and of the struggle which made our continental system a government for the people and by the people, I learned to idolize the institutions of my country, and was educated to believe it the duty of a citizen of the republic to take his fair allotment of the republic to take his fair allotment of the republic to make in behalf of the democratic many years of misrule, such a reform of systems and clark. CINCINNATI, June 20.—It is said that Mr. Miller, delegate from Nebraska, has a letter from Horatio Seymour to be presented to the convention, in which he repeats his declination of a nomination, and says that he is thinking more of his will and of his children than of the presidency, and that if it comes to a choice between a funeral and a nomination he would need to present the former. of a private citizen. It was, I presume, the success of efforts in which as a private citizen I had shared to overthrow a corrupt combination then holding dominion in our metropolis, and to purify the jodiciary which had become its tool, that induced the democracy of the state in 1874 to nominate the state of the st would prefer the former. ANOTHER POSSIBLE CANDIDATE.

The decilination of Tilden leaves everything uncertain. The New York delegation holds a meeting again to morrow night, and their action at that time is looked to with great interest. The name of Judge Pratt of Brooklyn lins been mentioned to-night as a possible New York and idea. the state in 1874 to nominate me for governor. This was done in spite of the protests of a minority, that the part I had borne in those reforms had created antagonisms fatal to me as a candidate. I felt constrained to accept the nomination as the most certain means of the nomination as the most certain means of putting the power of the gubernatorial office on the side of reform, and of removing the impression wherever it prevailed that the faithful discharge of one's duty as a citizen is fatal to his usefulness as a public servant. The breaking up of the canal ring, the better management of our public works, the large reduction of taxes and other reforms accomplished during my administration doubtless occasioned my nomination for the presidency by the democracy of the union in the hope that the convention whether he is to be thrown similar processes would be applied to the it to the convention whether he is to be thrown federal government. From the responsibilities of such an undertaking, appailing as it tion, is causing trouble in the Pennsylvania seemed to me. I did not feel at liberty to shrink. In the canvass which cusued, the until the last shot is fired, but it is noticeable shrink. In the canvass which cusued, the democratic party represented reform in the administration of the federal government and a restoration of our complex political system to the pure ideas of its founders. Upon these issues the people of the United States by a majority of more than a quarter of a million chose a majority of the electors to cast their votes for the democratic candidates for president and vice-president that its blot is fired, but it is noticeable that Randall's brother is going about circulating copies of the Philadelphia Times of Thurse day, which contained a sketch of the speaker, and is evidently laboring under the belief family before another week is ended. That mysterious letter of Tilden's is playing the very deace here. Nobody has seen it.

Whether Tilden has written a letter or not, one thing is certain—the report that he has is the disposal of its patronage. Through the whole period of my relation to the presidency I did everything in my power to elevate and nothing to lower moral standards in the comnot helping him any. People are beginning to tire of his sly, mysterious ways, and are saying if he intends to be a candidate he had petition of parties. By what refarious means the basis for a false count was laid in several the basis for a false count was laid in several of the states I need not recite. That subversion of the election created a new leave for the decision of the people of the United States, transcending in importance all questions of administration. It involved the vital principle of self-government through selections by the people.
